Challenges Overcome

One of the challenges I often face is having an idea I'm really passionate about when I don't have the skill set yet to accomplish it. I have so many ideas in my head for games. Art design, character design and models, level design, story, etc. but I don't have the skill set yet to bring all those elements together yet. So, I take those ideas and store them away for later when I can expand on them more. There are several ideas stored away in my brain's tupperware cupboard as we speak, patiently waiting for the moment they can be added to the sauce to make something delicious!

I also find that YOU are your own worst enemy. Especially if you're dealing with low esteem, mental health issues, or have been taught that you'll never have what it takes to accomplish your goals. The hardest part is ignoring the little voice in your head that tells you that you can't do it. That you'll fail. That you'll never amount to anything. Well, fuck that bitch. Don't listen to her, no one likes her, and she's often wrong.

You are your own worst enemy but you are also your greatest asset! You have the capability to learn, grow, and work hard. You will always be there for you. So treat you kindly.
